SYNOPSIS

In this book the adventures that MACA and Chico encounter as they construct a shield for Maria come to be known as “The MACA-Chico Project.”

The MACA-Chico Project talks about the real-life hardships that MACA and Chico faced as they journeyed thru the South Texas terrain. These real-life hardships included dealing with wild-life and the constant changes in the South Texas weather conditions. Furthermore, The MACA-Chico Project talks about the engineering, math, and science MACA and Chico needed to educate themselves. This information was used to construct Maria’s shield and was obtained through intensive research.

MACA and Chico teamed up and started to construct the shield for Maria when she was only three days old. Every night while everyone was sleeping, MACA and Chico would go into the unexplored caverns near the migrant shelter. They searched for special rare earth elements needed to construct Maria’s shield. After finding the needed rare earth elements, MACA and Chico proceeded to melt them down and form a special metal. MACA and Chico then molded, fabricated and fused them together. In the end one million micro layers of sheet metal were needed to construct Maria’s shield.

This shield was no ordinary shield, for nothing like it had ever been produced before. It took MACA and Chico almost eighteen years to complete the shield. When they finished constructing the shield, MACA and Chico gifted the shield to Maria. This shield’s ultimate purpose was to protect Maria from negativity in her journey to revolutionize education for all children; and this is how Maria’s special shield came to be known as “The Sheet Metal Girl Shield!”

Introduction

“For the first time ever, I decided to look at myself in the mirror as if I were a real human being; and as I looked in the mirror, I saw the fire of persistence burning in my eyes.

I saw the will of determination boiling in my circuits... and I saw the fight and courage pulsating in my electronic, metal-fabricated body.

Maria has completely changed who I am and what I am; Maria has given me life.

I have real purpose now... I am no longer just a robot...

I no longer just exist.

I exist for Maria, my child Maria.

I exist for all humanity, all God’s children.” - M.A.C.A.
